Corporal Works of Mercy: First and Second:

Feed the Hungry and Give Drink to the Thirsty

On the surface at least, feeding the hungry seems fairly straightforward.

We can help the hungry in simple ways: for example by making donations to the local food bank or food pantry. Moreover, unlike Christians in the ancient and medieval world (when the list of corporal works of mercy was first compiled), we can take the time to educate ourselves about the problem of hunger in the world, and we can use our voices and our votes to petition and pressure our politicians to make the fight against world hunger a higher priority for our government. Giving drink to the thirsty can also be accomplished through our role as voters: for example, by supporting clean water policies to ensure that there will be clean water for future generations to drink. Meanwhile, right in our own homes we can make our contributions to the effort to preserve clean, fresh water: for example, by using environmentally friendly laundry detergents or by trying to be moderate in the amount of water we put on our lawns. The founder of the Eucharistic Apostles of The Divine Mercy, Dr. Bryan Thatcher, tells the following story of how some students at his local Catholic high school made a big difference to people on the other side of the world.
